Overview:

The leading products in the ACM range are beam saws, traditional band saws and special band saws also for woodworking.

In addition, the company produces surface treatment machines and for some years now all its experience has been channelled into the production of equipment for cutting and machining various materials and horizontal beam saws.

Each machine is designed for maximum reliability and durability in the belief that it is essential to offer each and every customer added value, in this case the sense of security afforded by the company's experience and guarantee of complete safety of its equipment.

In addition to its standard production, ACM places great importance on research and innovation: our technicians work both with outside specialists and with the various customers, transforming every problem into an opportunity and every need into a new solution
